

From Weeding Out Corruption to Fighting City Hall...

Former Mayor Tells Audiences How to HOLD LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACCOUNTABLE

Debbie Peterson,
LOCAL GOVERNMENT
EXPERT

Thoughtful people who follow the news may wonder whether good government exists today and, if it does, what it looks like.

SHOW IDEAS:

- 10 Ways Ordinary People Can Beat Government Corruption
- How Cannabis Corrupted Local Democrats
- 'I Fought City Hall and Won ... and You Can Too!'
- The One American Value That Unites Us All, Regardless of Race, Religion, or Politics
- The Fourth Estate: Lapdog or Watchdog?
- What Ever Happened to Government by the People?
- Women's Often-Overlooked Role in Politics

As a former mayor, council member, planning commissioner, and an advocate for good government with a propensity for "telling it like it is," Debbie Peterson spent years serving communities, seeing people's needs go unmet because of gross misappropriation of funds.

She is available for interviews on some of the most important governmental issues today. Her advice provides ordinary people with the information they need to have extraordinary impacts on their communities.

Debbie Peterson is the former mayor of Grover Beach, Calif. She is the host of the new weekly podcast The Corruption Chronicles and the author of four books: The Happiest Corruption - Sleaze, Lies & Suicide in a California Beach Town; Local Government 101; How to Beat City Hall; and 365 Ways Everyday People Turned On the Lights @ City Hall (And How You Can Too). Her businesses included retail cafes, specialist bakeries, a trucking company, and distribution outlets in Scotland and London that grew to 95 employees and $7 million in annual sales in 1992. She studied journalism, radio-TV, and public relations at California State University, Fresno, and the University of Idaho.

Former Mayor Debbie Peterson offers an insider political analysis, breaking news thriller, and historical account, all rolled into one compelling book, The Happiest Corruption - Sleaze, Lies, & Suicide in a California Beach Town.

MEDIA EXPERIENCE:

Debbie's extensive media experience includes appearances on California Edition, KSBY (Scripps/NBC), and The Dave Congalton Show. 920-KVEC.

CONTACT DEBBIE:

info@DebbiePeterson.com or 1-805-550-4490

